An aerial photograph of the town of Pszów, Poland, taken during the 'golden hour' of sunset. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm, golden glow that filters through a layer of clouds. The town below is a mix of residential buildings, including houses with red-tiled roofs and larger, multi-story apartment blocks. A prominent white church with two dark spires stands out on the left side of the town. The landscape is interspersed with green trees and grassy areas. In the foreground, a solar panel array is visible on a grassy field. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and scenic.
